

References

1. Shapiro, I.M., and Landis, W.J. (2023). Mechanisms of Mineralization of Vertebrate Skeletal and Dental Tissues. Springer.
2. Schwarcz, H.P., Abueidda, D., and Jasiuk, I. (2017). The Ultrastructure of Bone and Its Relevance to Mechanical Properties. Frontiers in Physics 5, 39.
3. Reznikov, N., Shahar, R., and Weiner, S. (2014). Bone hierarchical structure in three dimensions. Acta biomaterialia 10, 3815–3826.
4. Doro, D. H., Grigoriadis, A. E., & Liu, K. J. (2017). Calvarial Suture-Derived Stem Cells and Their Contribution to Cranial Bone Repair. Frontiers in Physiology, 8, 956.
5. Twigg, S. R., & Wilkie, A. O. (2015). A Genetic-Pathophysiological Framework for Craniosynostosis. The American Journal of Human Genetics, 97(3), 359-377.
6. Ishii, M., Sun, J., Ting, M. C., & Maxson, R. E. (2015). The Development of the Calvarial Bones and Sutures and the Pathophysiology of Craniosynostosis. Current topics in developmental biology, 115, 131-156.
7. Roybal, P. G., Wu, N. L., Sun, J., Ting, M. C., Schafer, C. A., & Maxson, R. E. (2010). Inactivation of Msx1 and Msx2 in neural crest reveals an unexpected role in suppressing heterotopic bone formation in the head. Developmental biology, 343(1-2), 28-39.
8. Ida, T., Kaku, M., Kitami, M., Terajima, M., Rosales Rocabado, J. M., Akiba, Y., ... & Uoshima, K. (2018). Extracellular matrix with defective collagen cross-linking affects the differentiation of bone cells. PloS one, 13(9), e0204306.
9. Brielle, S., Bavli, D., Motzik, A., Kan-Tor, Y., Sun, X., Kozulin, C., ... & Buxboim, A. (2021). Delineating the heterogeneity of matrix-directed differentiation toward soft and stiff tissue lineages via single-cell profiling. Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, 118(19), e2016322118.
10. Dang, Y., Lattner, J., Lahola-Chomiak, A. A., Afonso, D. A., Ulbricht, E., Taubenberger, A., ... & Tabler, J. M. (2025). Self-propagating wave drives morphogenesis of skull bones in vivo. Nature Communications, 16(1), 4330.